RELIEF BILL FOES REFUSE TO ACCEDE DESPITE PROTESTS

Deadlock Continues as Administration Insists Works Program Will Not Be Carried Out With Measure in Present Form.

HOUSE REVERSAL FORESEEN BY BYRNS

Hastings Challenges Claim Prevailing Wage Provision Will Not Require Excessive Sum.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(AP)—The 21 democrats who voted against the administration on the $4,880,000 work relief bill were shown by a survey tonight to be standing firm despite the administration's hope that pressure from the country would change their attitude.

That some would refuse to budge was conceded but senate leaders did not abandon their feeling that reaction from the states might still swerve enough votes to throw the McCarran prevailing wage amendment out of the bill.

Meanwhile, the deadlock continued, with democratic leaders insisting the administration's plan to transfer $3,000,000 from the debt to work relief would not and could not be carried out with the bill in its present form. The measure rested quietly in the senate appropriations committee and there was no indication that it would be brought out again any time soon.

The senators who voted with the administration and those who voted against had, figuratively speaking, both ears to the ground in an effort to find out how their ballots were received by the folk.

Several senators reported their mail as yet had shown no appreciable increase. Those on both sides of the wage question who had heard from constituents said their respective positions had been upheld.

Robinson Reiterates Plea.

Fervent reiteration by Senator Robinson, the majority leader, that the president and those supporting him had no intention of breaking down the private wage scale and a second prediction by Speaker Byrnes that the "house will stand behind the president" apparently had little effect on those insisting upon retention of the wage clause.

Robinson told the senate, after he had finished his speech, that he was "deceiving the public" in contending the wage amendment would increase the cost of the work program by $2,340,000, that the public works program would never be "consummated" as long as that amendment remained.

"There is sound reason for the distinction between wages and wages to be paid in work relief," Robinson asserted.

"The object after all is to get rid of need of destitution relief but all

Minor Accident Causes General Savannah Mixup

SAVANNAH, Ga., Feb. 25.—(AP)—The few guns of gunpowder behind a 22 caliber rifle cartridge and sufficient power to cause these things to happen here.

Carrying the cartridge in a rifle, J. D. Burke, 12, stumbled and fell, police reported. The gun was discharged, the bullet hit Burke in the left shoulder and emerged in his neck.

An automobile carrying the boy to a hospital hit a mule-drawn scavenger wagon. Mose Green, the wagon driver, was thrown off and hurt. The mule team ran away.

Police came along and charged the motorist with reckless driving. Both the boy and the wagon driver got medical attention.

And the mules finally reached the city stables.

STATE FIRE RATES CUT 15 PER CENT

Slash Affecting Business Buildings Will Save Substantial Sum Here.

Fifteen per cent reduction in fire insurance premiums on mercantile buildings and contents rated as brick on a first or second-class basis was ordered in Georgia Monday by the Georgia inspection and rating bureau, of which E. H. Dennington is manager.

The saving was estimated variously Monday afternoon at from $50,000 to $150,000 a year in Atlanta alone. Dennington and his colleagues had not yet compiled a tabulation of the amount which would go into the pockets of those carrying policies.

On May 1, 1926, a 15 per cent advance was ordered on such premiums in Atlanta, but the showing of the Atlanta fire department, under Chief O. J. Parker, during the last several years, coupled with its 31-year record of low mortality, was credited with the latest reduction order.

Insurance executives were unable even to estimate the counterproductive effect, although they agreed that it "will be substantial."

Several weeks ago a cut of 10 per cent in the rates of Duval Hills residents was ordered by the bureau, but the privately operated fire department operating in that section.

Text of the order on the reduction in Atlanta follows:

To agents:

"On and after February 21, 1935, the 15 per cent advance on all mercantile buildings and contents previously ordered by the bureau is hereby rescinded on all mercantile buildings and contents rated as brick on a first or second-class basis.

"Not applicable to existing contracts.

"Existing policies covering on property subject to the above cannot be cancelled except at customary short rates.

E. H. DENNINGTON, Manager."

Further Rise Shown In Price of Hogs

CHICAGO, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Another sharp rise in live hog prices today carried the top to $9.20 per hundredweight, highest paid here since November 10, 1930.

Shortage of supplies, the same bullish market factor that has influenced an advance of $1.20 since January 1, was responsible for today's advance.

Active bidding hoisted prices 15 to 25 cents above Friday's averages.

NATION'S BUSINESS CONTINUES RISE, REPORT DISCLOSES

Volume of Trade in January 90 Per Cent of 1923-1925 Average, Says Reserve Board.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(AP)—A further upturn in industrial production, which brought the volume in January to 90 per cent of the 1923-25 average, was reported tonight by the federal reserve board in its monthly summary of business conditions.

The increase brought the production index to a new high for January since 1930. The climb amounted to 4 per cent, production in December being 86 per cent of the figure considered normal.

The output of lumber showed a gain, but it was still at a low level.

Not all the summary presented gains. The meat packing industry's output declined and employment in the industry continued to slip downward. It rested at about the same level as on January a year ago.

The output of non-manufactured industries, the number employed at retail trade establishments and on construction projects showed declines of a seasonal nature.

Building Increases.

The value of construction contracts awarded during the month was slightly larger than in December, but considerably smaller than a year ago when the volume of public projects was exceptionally large.

The value of contracts awarded for residential building during the three months ending with January was about the same as in the comparable periods of the two preceding years.

The general level of wholesale commodity prices, the board said, advanced from 77.9 per cent of the 1926 average in the week ended January 15, to 79.4 per cent in the week ended January 22.

Food prices advanced steadily during this period.

During January, prices of cattle and beef showed substantial increases, and in February the price of hogs advanced considerably.

Prices of cotton, grains and silk showed a decline in January and the price of wool advanced.

By an advance in the middle of the latter month.

1-Day Special Session To Be Called by Long

BATON ROUGE, La., Feb. 25.—(AP)—Senator Huey P. Long said today that Governor O. K. Allen would call a one-day session of the legislature "within a week or 10 days" to ratify his agreement with the Standard Oil Company of Louisiana for a rebate on the oil refining tax levied last December.

Long said no laws would be passed and no would be repealed. He said a concurrent resolution would be offered to authorize Governor O. K. Allen to rebate 4 cents of the 5 cent per barrel tax.

"We've got to have a special session of the legislature for only one day," Long said, "we will authorize the governor to make that rebate on the oil tax in line with the compromise."

Long said the session would be harmonious.

TOTAL OF JOBLESS SET AT 8,830,000

New Dealers Release First Calculations on Unemployment.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(AP)—A New Deal estimate of the number of unemployed—the first such compilation since President Roosevelt took office—today placed at 8,830,000 the number out of work in December, 1934.

This disagreed by 500,000 with the conclusion by the American Federation of Labor at 11,320,000 persons were unemployed at that time.

American figures were released without public comment as part of a 68-page report on the operation of the national industrial recovery act.

They were attributed to the national emergency council, but officials said they should be taken as a somewhat informal presentation. The figures were worked out, they said, by W. K. Riefler, the council's assigned economist of the council and his associates, and were not an official administration compilation.

The table in the report covered unemployment, month-by-month, from January, 1930, through December, 1934. Such detailed figures have never before been published by the government.

No attempt was made to reconcile the figures with those of the American Federation of Labor or with other figures published by the nation's industrial conference board, a private economic research organization. Nor was there any explanation as to the data on which the compilation was based.

The council figures showed that since December, 1930, the number of persons in the United States available for employment has increased 1,678,000 to a total of 50,426,000. The gain resulted from the normal increase in population.

The estimates showed a slight gain in employment for December over November.

Data for January, 1935, was not released, but officials said they believed the emergency council figures would show a further gain.

The January Federation of Labor figures also show an improvement over December, although contrary to the council figures.

LONDON, Feb. 25.—(AP)—James J. Walker, after a day with creditors in chancery court, said tonight he is going "home this fall" but vigorously denied difficulties with the alien registration bureau which might force him to leave the country.

With another creditor's suit in prospect, New York's former mayor threw in the statement that his days "of being a good time Charlie" were over.

Walker said right now "I am busy gathering health. I am going to stay in England this summer and then go home this fall."

HOME EXEMPTION MEASURE DOOMED, REDWINE BELIEVES

Senate President Announces He Is Preparing Substitute "Which May Be Worthwhile."

Previous indications that a house constitutional amendment which would exempt from taxation all homesteads up to a valuation of $5,000 would meet hard going in the senate were confirmed Monday when Senate President Charles Redwine announced in a committee hearing he was preparing a substitute "which might be worthwhile."

President Redwine appeared before the senate constitutional amendments committee shortly after E. D. Rivers, speaker of the house of representatives and sponsor of the $5,000 exemption bill in the house, had asked the committee to set a date for hearing, so that the bill could be advanced on the legislative calendar.

The committee accordingly set the hearing on all tax exemption measures now in the hands of senate committees for Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock, but not until Redwine had given approval to the time and date.

"I am thoroughly convinced that the $5,000 exemption bill would wreck every county and municipal government in this state," Redwine said, "and I think it would wreck them all throughout the state. But I am interested in tax reform, and I think it is bearing too much of a burden on the state. I am going to hold this bill off until we can introduce something that will be worthwhile in Georgia."

Presentation of the house tax exemption measure before the committee followed the statement of Senator W. W. Larsen Jr., of Dublin, that when the exemption bills were being "muzzled," he had been told by the senate committee that it was not to be introduced.

Speaking on personal privilege, Larsen said he wanted the opportunity to vote for the $5,000 tax exemption bill, which he believed would be a "good thing" for the state.

"Where is the bill?" Larsen shouted. "It's not at the clerk's desk. The chairman of the committee has not even taken it up. I am secretary of the constitutional amendments committee and I can't find it. Where is it?"

Senator Linton S. Johnson, of Royston, chairman of the constitutional amendments committee, replied the bill was not lost. Instead, he said, the bill had been given to the committee with instructions to be held for further action. The bill in question was the first one presented for action at the committee meeting called after the senate adjourned for the day.

John W. Hammond, secretary of the senate, said following adjournment the exemption bill had not been lost and would not be lost. "No bills will be introduced," he said, "I am secretary of this senate," Hammond said.

Besides the house amendment there are two senate amendments providing for a $5,000 exemption up to $25,000. They will be considered Thursday along with the house measure.

Senate President Redwine when he presented the amendments to the senate committee also received from the house a certain defeat in the senate.

The constitutional committee also recommended for passage an amendment by Senator Lester, of Augusta, which would fix the salary of any additional judges who might be appointed in the Augusta circuit at $2,000 annually. Lester explained the amendment merely enlarged the counties in the district to supplement the $5,000 provided by $7,000. At present there is only one judge in the circuit.

Daiches' Widow Seeks $100,000 Insurance

CHICAGO, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Further legal steps for passage of the Daiches' insurance policy were pressed today as the widow, Mrs. Belle T. Daiches, sought $100,000 of the $300,000 insurance paid the Thomas Daiches advertising agency for Daiches' death.

Meanwhile, the state prepared to prosecute two men allegedly connected with the murder of which Irving Weitzman was convicted Saturday and given a life sentence. A jury found Weitzman guilty of being chief conspirator in the assassination.

Criminal prosecution will be pushed against Walter Murphy, southside hoodlum who testified at the Weitzman trial he was paid $25,000 to arrange the slaying and Arthur Ambien, Gary Ind., involved by Murphy as his confederate.

Worried Mother Slays Daughter, 4

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Four-year-old Marie Louise Duke was stabbed to death with a butcher knife at her home today and police said a mother told them the child gasped "mother cut me" just before she died.

The mother, Mrs. S. M. Duke, was taken to Charity hospital and questioned. Her husband told officers he found her wandering aimlessly about the kitchen when he rushed into the room from the front yard upon hearing screams.

Maria Louise, the father said, was lying dead on the floor with a knife wound in her heart. Two sons, George, 10, and Lee, 7, also were in the kitchen, and police who questioned them later quoted one of the boys as saying the mother had wielded the knife.

Trading Between U. S., Germany Collapses

BERLIN, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Trade relations between the United States and Germany have taken a turn toward a complete collapse, it was learned today in official figures just made available.

Within one year American sales to Germany have dropped from $15,700,000 in January, 1934, to $2,600,000 last December, or to approximately 1-6 of their volume within a twelve-month.

Similarly, German sales to the United States show a steady although less marked decline, dropping from almost $6,500,000 in January, 1934, to about $5,500,000 in December.

$50,000 BONDS SET FOR HARVEY, SMITH

Pair Positively Identified as Bandits in Rome Pay Roll Robbery.

Leland Harvey and Aubrey Smith, Georgia's Public Enemies Nos. 1 and 2, were ordered held to the federal grand jury in bonds of $50,000 each when arraigned Monday before United States Commissioner E. S. Griffith on charges of holding up two messengers of the National City Bank of Rome, on August 24, obtaining $9,875.

J. A. Palmer, cashier of the bank, positively identified Harvey and Smith as the men who held him up. The money, representing the weekly pay roll of the Chattillon Mills, just north of Rome, was taken by two bandits who forced Palmer's car off the road near the Rome city limits, compelled the cashier and Raymond Ford, who accompanied him, to run up a hill, and then sped away with their loot.

Neither of the prisoners testified at the preliminary hearing, but Frank Bowers, their attorney, said that when placed on trial in the federal district court at Rome in May they will plead guilty to the robbery and the money-iron-clad alibi showing they were in a city 500 miles from the scene of the robbery on August 24 and that they both sent and received telegrams on the day in question.

Cashier Tells of Holdup.

Palmer was the first witness called at the hearing Monday. Under questioning by Assistant United States Attorney Neil Andrews, the bank cashier described the holdup. Harvey, he said, was driving the bandit car while Smith sat beside him, pistol in hand.

"The car drew alongside of us and the man I later learned was Smith ordered me to stop my car," he testified. "At the same time the driver, who was Harvey, kept edging us into the bank along the side of the highway."

"When I brought my car to a stop Smith leaped out and forced us to alight. Harvey stationed himself in front of my car, likewise covering us with his pistol, and I was to run up the hill, but I didn't quite understand what he meant. He struck at me with his pistol, but I was so overpowered that I didn't know whether he was or not. The next day, however,

Pay Roll Tax Hike Voted for Pensions

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Increased pay roll taxes, designed to set up a reserve of $50,000,000 for 1930, were written today by the house ways and means committee into the contributory old-age annuity system to be set up under the social insurance bill.

The taxes, half to be borne by the employee and half by the employer, will be returned to the employee after he reaches 65.

As amended by the committee today, the bill calls for an initial tax of 2 per cent of pay rolls—beginning in 1930 and increasing 1 per cent each three years to 6 per cent in the 13th year.

The committee also exempted farmers, domestics and casuals from the contributory old-age annuity taxes, along with churches, educational institutions, hospitals and other non-profit organizations.

SUBSTITUTE BILL VOTED 112 TO 52, AFTER LONG FIGHT

Approved Parker-Shirah-Barger Proposal Calls for Local Option Ballot in Counties After State-Wide Referendum.

STATE DISPENSARY FEATURE IS "OUT"

Bill Permits Counties and Municipalities To Establish Liquor Stores; Ten Per Cent Tax Provided.

By a vote of 112 to 52 the house of representatives late Monday passed a bill submitting state prohibition repeal to the people in a state-wide popular vote referendum set for May 15, county option elections to follow in the event the repeal measure is approved.

The action came after the house had rejected 99 to 51 against the Townsend-Griffin plan for state liquor stores. The drys were voting with the Townsend-Griffin group.

Contemplated efforts to bring about a reconsideration were defeated when the bill was immediately transmitted to the senate, where it will be given its first reading today or Wednesday and referred to the temperance committee, which is expected to act on it before the week is out.

Jubilant rejoicing in the hall of the house as speaker E. D. Rivers announced the result of the roll call, by Representatives Parker, and Shirah, of Colquitt county, and Barger, of Burke county. It provided what was considered a compromise between the county option repeal plan sponsored by the Townsend-Griffin group, and the state-wide referendum proposal of Lincoln county, and Grayson, of Chatham county, and others, the repeal-election, county option plan of Representative Head, of Catastoa county, and the liquor store proposal of Representative Townsend, of Dade county, and Griffin, of Decatur county.

Groves and Grayson and Head withdrew their proposals and threw their support to the Parker-Shirah-Barger bill and aided in substituting it for the Townsend-Griffin bill, which had been approved by the house last week while sitting as a committee of the whole. After their bill had been eliminated Representatives Townsend and Griffin joined Parker, Shirah, Barger, Groves and Grayson in putting through the state-wide referendum proposal.

Beer Dute for Today

Speaker Rivers announced as the house adjourned a short delay at 6 o'clock Monday night that he would ask the rules committee to set the beer legalization bill as a special order of business for today and Representative Rivers.

LEGS OF HUMAN FOUND IN TRAIN

Scotland Yard Speeds Investigation of Third Gruesome Find.

LONDON, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Chief Inspector Donaldson, of Scotland Yard, who had charge of the famous Brighton mysteries, "trunk crime No. 1" and its sequel "No. 2," tonight took over London's latest dismemberment sensation—the gruesome find of a pair of human legs on a suburban train.

The limbs, severed from the body of a man, were discovered by trainmen stuffed under the seat of a coach arriving at Waterloo station from suburban Houslow. A coach cleaner inspecting a third-class compartment found the objects wrapped in a bloody newspaper and with an outside covering of heavier brown paper.

The legs were almost hairless, and railway police at first could not even identify the sex of the individual to whom they had belonged. Experts quickly determined, however, that they had belonged to a man.

It was recalled that the woman's torso in Brighton's "trunk crime No. 1" was similarly wrapped. The Brighton crime, occurring last summer, was officially closed last week by a coroner's jury returning an "open verdict."

Inspector Donaldson ordered a thorough check of all 20 stations where the train had stopped. Tickets relinquished by passengers were ordered collected, and ticket takers were asked to give descriptions of passengers, if possible. Coaches were examined for fingerprints.

Physicians examining the legs estimated their owner had been dead about 12 hours.

The President of the United States

Half a century ago James Bryce said that the presidency was the greatest office in the world to which anyone can rise by his own efforts. Since that time, the powers of the president of the United States have enormously increased, and the tendency under the New Deal has been still further to enlarge his powers and responsibility.

Our Washington bureau has ready for you a new bulletin on the manner of election, the powers, duties, emoluments, and accession to the office of president. It gives the historical facts down to the immediate present, when the method of election and terms of office of the president have been radically changed by the "Lame Duck" amendment to the Constitution. This bulletin will be of special interest and value to students whose textbooks are all out of date on this subject.

Young Missionary and Bride Feared Slain by Chinese Band

SIAM, Shensi province, China, Feb. 25.—(AP)—The capture and possible murder of a young Australian missionary and his bride, who were captured by a band of Chinese, contributed today to fears for the safety of two American women missing since February 18.

Unconfirmed rumors reached the China inland mission here that the Rev. Mr. S. C. French had been killed by his bandit captors. Communications with Nanking were cut off, and no confirmation could be obtained.

The two Americans, Miss Ruby Verne Thompson, of Nevada, Iowa, and Miss Alma Ruth Artley, of Chicago, were reported to have been captured about a week ago.

The two women are graduates of the Moody Bible Institute in Chicago. Miss Artley is 27 years old and Miss Thompson 42.

Relatives in Chicago and Iowa told of receiving letters from them recently, written, however, more than a month ago. Miss Thompson told of having been advised to leave their post presumably because of bandit activities.

News of the French couple sharply recalled the fate of the American missionaries, Mr. and Mrs. John G. Stearns, who were captured by communist rebels in southwest Kweichow province last December.

Information available at the inland mission was that the Frenchs, who had been married less than a year, were captured together about two weeks ago at Nanking. Mrs. French was released and told to procure ransom.

Local missionaries have undertaken a pressing search through the snow-covered and ice-laden mountains of western and southern Shensi for Mrs. French, who was said to be an experienced mountaineer. The search had become lost while attempting to reach Fengshing, a 10-day journey northward on foot.

Two British men missionaries, one of whom arrived here only Saturday, 12 days fleeing through the territory. The started out on foot again today, laden with food and medicines, to try and find Mrs. French, and if possible, her husband.

Other reports indicated that 13 other missing missionaries have been located. A group of five British church workers, three women and two men, arrived with two children at Fengshing after a perilous journey from Hanchung in south Shensi. Eight more from the same mission, four men and four women, with one child, escaped from south Shensi. At Ankang, many miles down the Nan river.

LAST LETTER TO PARENTS RECEIVED 3 WEEKS AGO
NEVADA, Iowa, Feb. 25.—(AP)—The parents of Miss Ruby V. Thompson, missionary now feared lost in China, last heard from their daughter about three weeks ago, they said today.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. O. Thompson, said their daughter in her last letter reported that she and a companion, Miss Mary Artley, of Chicago, had been advised to leave their station at Fengshing in west Shensi.

Miss Thompson, 42, has been with the inland China mission board for about 16 years.

Police Chiefs Confer On Improving Forces
CHIEFS of police of East Point, Ga., and Atlanta, Ga., conferred with members of the Fulton county grand jury Monday at a special session called for discussing means of improving the police systems in the Atlanta area with a view to combating crime.

Because of the inability of Chief T. O. Sturdivant, of the Atlanta department, and Chief George Matheson, of the county department, to attend the meeting, it was said another special session may be called during the week.

Among matters under discussion was the spread of indecent literature among school children and the establishment of police training schools which would require passing grade after six months of study before supernumerary policemen are assigned to regular duty.

The grand jury is expected to study also, before making its presentments, a civil service bill which has been prepared by Sam Hewlett, attorney, in co-operation with acting County Attorney Ralph Pharr, which would place Fulton county employees under civil service regulations.

With this action came the announcement the corporation could not pay $313,158 in interest due March 1 on $10,438,000 of five-year 6 per cent consolidated mortgage bonds in the hands of the public.

Judge Oliver B. Dickinson signed an order allowing the corporation to retain possession of its property until March 22. At that time he will hold a hearing to determine whether to allow the concern to continue permanent possession, or whether he will appoint court trustees to take over the business.

William Clark Mason, of counsel for the corporation, said none of the subsidiaries is affected by the petition.

Announcement of the move stated payment of the March 1 interest to consolidated mortgage bondholders "could not" be made "without endangering the ability of the company to continue current operations." Bonds outstanding represent the balance of a $12,000,000 issue.

U. S. Action Is Sought In Activity of 'Reds'
LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Feb. 25.—(AP)—A proposal that the United States congress "take cognizance" of Commonwealth Labor College, near Mena, Ark., now being investigated for alleged communist teachings, was made in the state senate today by Senator Alfred Featherston, of Pike county.

Featherston introduced a joint legislative resolution asking "that congress be requested to take cognizance of this and other institutions which may affect national prosperity or even endanger the existence of the national government."

A legislative committee was named some two weeks ago to inquire into Commonwealth's teachings.

He was chosen to fill a term expiring December 31, 1937, succeeding J. B. Hill, former president of the N. C. & St. L. railway, who resigned upon his election to the presidency of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Co., with headquarters in Louisville, in the St. Louis federal reserve district.

HULL, OTHER NOTABLES GET ROLLINS DEGREES

Ambassador de LaBoulaye, Rabbi Stephen Wise Are Honored.

WINTER PARK, Fla., Feb. 25.—(AP)—Secretary of State Cordell Hull, the French ambassador to the United States, Andre Lefevre de LaBoulaye, and six other distinguished persons today were awarded honorary degrees at a Founders' Day convocation at Rollins College.

Secretary Hull received a degree of doctor of humanities, while the French ambassador was awarded a doctor of laws.

Others who were honored by the college were: Dr. Stephen S. Wise, rabbi of the Free Synagogue of New York and president of the Jewish Institute of Religion, doctor of divinity; Dr. Jay T. Stocking, pastor of the Pilgrim church of St. Louis, doctor of laws; Joseph C. Lincoln, Villa Nova, Pa., author, doctor of literature; Frances Knowles Warren (Mrs. George E. Warren), of Boston, doctor of humanities; and Thomas J. Watson, director of the federal reserve bank of New York and industrialist, doctor of humanities.

Dr. Wise addressed the convocation gathering on "The University and American Youth." America's danger, he said, "is that men will think together and live part instead of thinking independently yet learning how to live together."

"The American university must, like education, train the citizen as well as the man. . . . The university's loftiest service to American youth is to help them to keep the free and unhampered mind, to behold with joy the beauty of truth and the beauty of holiness, to think alone as individuals and to dwell together as brothers. Above all, to cherish and serve the democratic ideal."

Ford Asked To Bid On 4 Million Order
WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(AP)—As a definite step toward ending the one-time feud between Henry Ford and the NRA, the war department today sent the Detroit manufacturer an invitation to bid on 4,310 trucks and cars to cost about $1,000,000.

Because he had declined to sign the NRA automobile code, Ford for many months was not invited to bid on government purchases, or his bids were thrown out. He was finally invited along with the code signers, today, however, to submit figures on the present batch of cars to be used by the civilian conservation corps.

In an authoritative quarter it was said that before March 23, when the bids are to be opened, army officials expect the NRA to have revised existing code compliance requirements so as to make a Ford bid acceptable.

EXPERIMENTS BARE NEW METHOD TO AID CANCER TREATMENT
WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(AP)—The discovery of a mysterious substance which makes cancer cells more susceptible than healthy ones to x-rays and radium rays were reported here today as another in the series of tortuous steps toward the cure of the disease.

Physicians have long known that cancer tissue is affected by radiation more than sound flesh but the reason was believed to be that the rays stopped growth of the cells.

Experiments by Dr. Paul S. Henshaw, of Memorial hospital, New York, have apparently determined, however, that the rays halt the working of the strange substance that regulates not only growth in size but other development as well.

Studies by Dr. Henshaw were made public by the American Association for the Advancement of Science. Cancer specialists hope that from them may grow the knowledge of just how much radiation to apply to the diseased cells so that normal cells will not be harmed.

MRS. DICK RETURNS VISIT TO ENZO'S EX-WIFE'S HOME
ROME, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Wealthy and socially prominent Mrs. Madeline Force Astor Dick Fiermonte went calling today on the Italian Fiermontes and was guest of honor at a family party.

She returned the call made yesterday by her mother-in-law, Mrs. Lucia Fiermonte, mother of her handsome young husband, by visiting the humble home of her husband's family.

The flashing-eyed mother of Enzo received her wealthy American daughter-in-law with the same social amenities with which the society leader had received her in Rome's most expensive hotel and invited her to tea.

"We had not expected Madeline to come here," Nella, Enzo's tall young sister, said. "But this afternoon Enzo appeared with her at the door. She met the whole family and made herself right at home—wanted to help prepare tea even."

"She seemed particularly taken with Baby Anna," Anna is the nine-month-old daughter of Enzo's sister, Torina.

"She seemed to enjoy herself a great deal," Nella continued, "and I know we enjoyed having her. We all liked her very much before, but she is even nicer than we thought. She said she hoped to come to see us again before she and Enzo left and invited us to come to see her, too."

MOTHER, TWO CHILDREN MYSTERIOUSLY MISSING
EL DORADO, Ark., Feb. 25.—(AP)—Union county officers today began their investigation in an attempt to solve the mysterious disappearance last week of Mrs. W. A. Rodgers, 22, and her two children.

No trace of them has been found since her husband, a former relief worker now employed as a carpenter, reported their disappearance last Thursday night. Sheriff Grady Woolley said his force had been unable to find a trace to their whereabouts.

Chief Orders Officer Home for Anniversary
Detective Lieutenant W. H. Andrews was suspended Monday by Chief Sturdivant and ordered to spend two days with his wife. It is their golden wedding anniversary today.

Lieutenant Andrews is in charge of the night police detective bureau. He interrupted Monday on his wife would spend the vacation in Jackson, Ga., the scene of their childhood.

Lieutenant and Mrs. Andrews were married with the total resources of 25 cents, he revealed Monday, but he added, "The dollar was worth more then."

DuBois Girls' Suicide Notes Bare Love for Dead Officers

LONDON, Feb. 25.—(AP)—In a gloomy little coroner's court, its windows streaked with rain, British justice drew the last bit of pain and pathos today from the suicide of Elizabeth and Jane Du Bois, who leaped down a "pretty straight corridor" from an airplane to join two men in death.

While the grief-stricken father of the two girls, Coert Du Bois, United States consul general at Naples, waited for their mother in an adjoining room, a jury brought in a verdict of death "while of unsound mind"—the usual verdict in such cases.

The parents had hoped the last intimate thoughts of their daughters would be kept from public knowledge, but against a consular protest Coroner C. E. Lewis revealed those thoughts, written jointly in separate letters to their father and mother, before a jury of eight young men and half a hundred newspapermen.

That the beautiful Jane Du Bois, broken-hearted at the death of Flying Officer John A. C. Forbes in an airplane crash at Messina, Sicily, had accompanied her sister Elizabeth to swift death from a Paris-bound air liner was no longer in doubt after Lewis read the letters. Elizabeth was equally heart-broken over the death of Flight Lieutenant Henry L. Beatty in the same crash.

"There will never be anyone else for me," Jane wrote. "Charles (Forbes) and I were going to spend our lives together and I must keep my part of the bargain."

It took the coroner's jury only a moment after the reading of the letters to return with the verdict "death while of unsound mind."

The letter to Du Bois, beginning "Darling Coert," said: "Mother, remember Charles telling about the corridors? The one before us seems pretty straight. Charles was engaged to another girl and he was going to break it off and we would have been married this summer probably."

That was Jane's writing. They filled in each letter in alternate paragraphs. "We heard of his death in Paris on Monday. We came to London next morning and came to the Ritz. We did not want to see anyone. Comfort mother with all your strength. Luck is with you now."

"Betty and Jane." The second letter said: "Do not doubt that we are with you now and always and with great love. Please do not think we have done anything wicked, for we were given proof that if there is a rule, an exception has been made for us."

"We went to St. Martin's-in-the-Field (a church in London) because they were to pray for Charles and Dick during the services. They knew we have not been confirmed, but they let us take communion and be absolved from our sins."

"The lesson was the parable of the laborers in the vineyard. You must have known when you heard that the crash in Sicily would pull us over a line which has never been well enough defined for us."

"We spent the day loaded down with half crown (fifty-cent pieces) for the proletariat to drink to him. What is left in the bank is all Coert's. If it is considered ours, it goes to the unemployed at Pembroke docks (from where the flying boat 'Ace of Diamonds' hopped off for Singapore) or for Royal Air Force widows. Our bags are at the Victoria station. Do you think George Peterson (the coroner) explained this was probably a book they had written) can be published?"

"Darling, there is no one else on earth we can even hope to have. Understand. We would like that there be nothing in this letter to hurt. It is only the smaller things, sentimentalities that do that. Think of us as undivided and happy as we would never have been after our lives became complicated with servants. We loved you and that can never be broken or destroyed. You must not be discouraged if there are difficulties. It will pass. This is the greatest trust which we have ever put in you. Forever."

"BESSIE and JANE." Franklin C. Gowen, busy young American consul, had protested vainly on behalf of the Du Bois parents against making public the full text of the letters. He pointed out that neither of the parents had read them. He flushed angrily when the official persisted.

The coroner said he only did his duty in reading the letters, as when called to the witness stand to answer a series of routine questions slowly propounded by Lewis, who passed to write each answer in long-hand.

Du Bois raised his head to answer sharply only once after the coroner had asked if there were anything

3,211 Acres in Georgia For Forest Service

Condemnation proceedings whereby the United States forest service will acquire title to 3,211 acres of land in Fannin, Gilmer and Dawson counties for addition to the Cherokee and Nantahala national forests will be filed in federal district court today, it was announced by W. H. Tysinger, assistant United States attorney.

The suits are of "friendly" nature, inasmuch as agreement as to purchase price has already been reached with the owners. The suits are necessary, however, in order to clear titles to many parcels of the property.

So far this year the forest service has acquired 35,000 acres of land in Fannin, Gilmer, Murray and Dawson counties through similar condemnation suits. The land thus obtained is suited to agriculture, although much of it contains pine forests.

The Cherokee national forest now embraces 730,000 acres of land, nearly half of which is in northwest Georgia, according to J. C. Kireher, regional forest director. Other portions of the forest lie in North Carolina and Tennessee.

Johnston said today that his efforts abroad would be directed at restoring normal world trade in this country's farm products. Prospects for an international cotton agreement with India, Egypt, Brazil and Argentina will be discussed. The United States at present has a cotton surplus of 3,500,000 bales.

Johnston, now director of the AAA cotton producers' pool and special assistant on commodity loans to Secretary Morgenthau, asserted: "With our enormous territory we must necessarily produce a tremendous surplus of raw materials over and above the quantities necessary to feed and clothe America. These materials must be exported."

Johnston To Sail for Europe In Effort To Aid U. S. Trade

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Oscar Johnston, Mississippi cotton planter, will sail Wednesday for Europe to talk with trade experts of several countries buying more American farm products, especially cotton.

Johnston is one of the New Deal's most ardent internationalists. Experienced in the law and banking as well as cotton growing, he was made director of finance for the agriculture administration in May, 1933. Ever since then he has contended that restoration of world trade is essential to permanent recovery for the American farmer.

Johnston said today that his efforts abroad would be directed at restoring normal world trade in this country's farm products. Prospects for an international cotton agreement with India, Egypt, Brazil and Argentina will be discussed. The United States at present has a cotton surplus of 3,500,000 bales.

Johnston said today that his efforts abroad would be directed at restoring normal world trade in this country's farm products. Prospects for an international cotton agreement with India, Egypt, Brazil and Argentina will be discussed. The United States at present has a cotton surplus of 3,500,000 bales.

Johnston, now director of the AAA cotton producers' pool and special assistant on commodity loans to Secretary Morgenthau, asserted: "With our enormous territory we must necessarily produce a tremendous surplus of raw materials over and above the quantities necessary to feed and clothe America. These materials must be exported."

Should the United States discontinue permanently its exportation of "considerable quantities" of cotton, tobacco, pork, lard, lumber and other commodities, he said, "we would throw out of employment millions of people now engaged in the production of those commodities, we would disorganize the social economy of millions of people, we would take out of cultivation to those crops 30,000,000 or 40,000,000 acres of land, and would bring lands now planted to those crops into the production of other crops, thus disorganizing other agricultural industries throughout the country."

Prosperity in the United States is linked inseparably with world-wide recovery, he said.

"In short, we cannot get well with the balance of the world sick and for that reason it behooves us so to adjust our economic life and laws as to promote world-wide welfare."

THE WORK-RELIEF BENEFITS

It is obvious that congress will eventually enact a measure in line with the president's request for an appropriation of $4,880,000,000 for relief.

This vast sum will have to be paid back through one form of taxation or another, and Georgia will have to shoulder her proportionate part of the burden.

If the state does not get a fair allotment from this general distribution of federal largess, her taxpayers will be bearing a burden from which they will get no benefit.

Many local governments in Georgia need funds for essential public improvements. Several towns have inadequate water facilities. PWA funds are available for such projects, at low rates of interest and on a long-term basis that would permit the loans to be repaid out of revenues, without a dollar having to be raised by taxation.

But the state must authorize such loans.

The general assembly should keep this well in mind, and should make provision accordingly, otherwise the state will be left in the position where it must pay its part of benefits received by other states, while getting none for itself.

The legislative committee, headed by Speaker Rivers, that has just returned from Washington, has rendered invaluable service in revealing that whether or not Georgia shares in the government's vast relief program, she must pay.

If the general assembly does not take some step toward meeting this situation, its members will have some explaining to do when they go home.

PARAGUAY JOINS THE LEAGUE

The action of the Paraguayan government in resigning from the League of Nations is not surprising, since it has been evident that this warlike country, fired by the successes of the latest conflict with Bolivia, is in no mood to brook intervention that might endanger the advantages gained at heavy cost in life and money.

The League's most effective weapon against Paraguay lies in the continuance of the arms embargo against that country, while the embargo is lifted in the case of Bolivia. Seemingly Paraguay is not disturbed over the situation, claiming to have captured enough arms and ammunition from the Bolivians to continue fighting indefinitely.

Although their country is far smaller in population, area and resources than Bolivia, the Paraguayans have been uniformly successful in the bloody fighting in the Chaco region, termed the "green hell" of South America. They now occupy practically the entire region and are on the Bolivian border, only a few miles across which lie rich and extensive oil fields.

The capture of these fields by the Paraguayan forces would be as serious a blow to Bolivia as the loss of its outlet to the Pacific some years ago as the result of the unsuccessful war conducted with Chile and Peru. The outlet to the Atlantic, through the streams rising in the Chaco, has already been blocked by Paraguay and the oil fields are the richest of the nation's natural resources.

With Paraguay following the example of Germany and Japan, the League of Nations has lost within two years' time a strong and in-

The Real Africa.

Here, after some 3,000 miles of zig-zagging through desert and plain, skidding mountains, crossing rivers, avoiding pestilence, and dodging famine, fringing an eternal colonial war, riding through sandstorms and sleet, witnessing human sacrifice, magic and devil-rituals, I find at last the real Africa: The land of 90 in the shade, of slave-convoys, of cannibal-festivals, of pigmies, grinning skulls, of real poison, of night full of whistles, of howling jackals, of diamond-hunters, of ivory-caravans, of sacred crocodiles, of fishy-obsessed gods, of polyandry, of breathing erotic ceremonies, of immolation of children, moon-worshippers who crawl on all fours, dwarfs who feed on human corpses, devil-possessed magicians, snakes and lizard eaters, people who inhale poison fumes from tracks in the rock; the real Africa at last, sinister, mysterious, primitive, cruel and evil.

I saw a holy man whose shape cast no shadow; women whose lips protruded six or seven inches, like the beak of some evil bird; and metal rings having been inserted in youth to stretch them. Others whose necks were elongated to twice the normal size by means of a ring being added to a collection of necklaces every six months of their lives. I heard a man bellow out a prayer which sounded like the cry of a wounded lion. I came across a tribe which feeds on ants. Tiny girls six or seven were being married off to athletic giants.

Half a dozen old guardsmen who wanted to get in good with labor, and (2) republicans old guardsmen who voted against their real convictions just to make trouble.

The vote of this latter class is causing scandalous cloakroom discussion. Even the victors did not like the help they got from this source. They say it discredited their sincere efforts to get changes in the bill.

Half a dozen old guardsmen could be named, who have always been against boosting relief costs, against union wage scales, against inflation and everything the amendment stood for. Yet they voted for it.

ARMAMENT A Washington newsman was sitting in his semi-suburban home the other night with his wife, when the doorbell rang. It was about 10 p. m. He went to the door, and there he was confronted with Huey Long, flanked by two threatening individuals.

"Just dropped in for a little chat," said Huey. "Don't mind my boys here. They just look big because they have a couple of sub-machine guns along."

The machine gunners stood guard while the chat proceeded. When it was over they scouted around to see that the coast was clear, escorted Huey to his car and drove off.

SHEEP-THINKING Anyone who has had any experience with legislatures, state or national, will recognize the symptoms behind the current disorderly situation in congress.

All legislative sheep-herding has been assembled in session for a couple of months. They think in groups, and not individually. A group leader takes a slant on an issue. His associates seize it and poll-parrot it around. After it has been repeated often enough, it becomes a fact. This is what makes the jobs of lobbyists easy.

In fact, the whole city of Washington normally displays the same tendency toward developing deeply grooved viewpoints.

THREAT Patronage-hungry congressmen are behind the move for a congressional investigation of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation. It is only a threat to make the HOLC open up on jobs. If congress carries it much further, you may see Chairman Fahey resign. He has intimates as much privately to friends. Fahey is dead set against opening up the field agent jobs to the spoilsmen.

REQUITAL The Grubb decision against the Tennessee Valley Authority has aroused the anti-power groups in the senate so much that they have privately vowed to watch all judicial nominations more closely hereafter. The immediate effect has been to inspire an investigation of a district attorney recently nominated in a southern state. The idea of court review is to ascertain how judges and prosecutors stand on the power issue before the senate confirms them.

CAUSE The best reason for signing a Townsend old-age pension plan petition has been offered by a small-town school superintendent from a Rocky Mountain state. He was in town recently seeing his senator. The senator remonstrated with him for signing a Townsend petition, saying he had better sense than to believe the plan workable.

"I know it," replied the school superintendent. "But I had to do it. You see, all the members of the school board in my town are over 60."

The senator agreed this was sufficient reason.

HOW MUCH DO YOU WANT TO GET WELL?

A correspondent writes: "I thought you would know how much benefit I derived from reading your column, called 'Want to Get Well?' It came into my hands at a very opportune time."

I had been allowed to ride and some other privileges, but began showing color in my spasm and of course had my privileges taken away.

I was very discouraged, but reading this fine book by Fannie Benson Rogers gave me strength and courage to keep on trying.

It has such a heartening tone to it. Keeping cheerful and happy, it seems to me, is half the battle. And it can be done, as I myself am proving and this little book helps me to do this.

I think it is a fine book for those with tuberculosis, also for their relatives.

That's what I thought when I recommended the book to all who have, suspect they have or are likely to have tuberculosis.

"Want to Get Well?" by Fannie Benson Rogers has been recommended to patients by many of the most distinguished tuberculosis specialists of the country.

The book, I think, deserves a place alongside of Dr. Lawson Brown's "Rules for Recovery," which has been a counselor and guide for many a patient with tuberculosis.

I am particularly proud of "Want to Get Well" because I urged and helped the author to write it. I am as proud of it as I am of my own. It is a fine book for those with tuberculosis, also for their relatives.

LESSON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—You can save your eyes by not reading most of the statements being given out by both sides in this relief bill fight. Both the New Dealers and the senate oppositionists are doing considerable bluffing. There will undoubtedly be further hectic backing and filling before the measure is finally enacted, but, in the end, President Roosevelt will get just about any kind of a bill he wants.

The strategy appears to have been conceived in a moment of pique after Mr. Roosevelt's temporary setback on the relief wage plan. The idea was that the country would immediately proceed to ridicule the senate for playing politics.

It was a hazardous move, but the congressional leaders are sure it will work out all right.

POLITICS There was no question among insiders that politics was behind the senate wage decision. Many of the 44 senators who opposed Mr. Roosevelt really voted from sincere conviction. A fair backstage guess has been made that possibly half of them did. You can tell the ones who did by looking into their past labor records.

The rest could be divided into two classes: (1) Democrats who wanted to get in good with labor, and (2) republicans old guardsmen who voted against their real convictions just to make trouble.

Nazis Dissolving Austrian Organization

VIENNA, Feb. 25.—(P)—Reports from official sources, while few in detail, indicate that the Austrian government is voluntarily dissolving all Nazi organizations—both military and political—in Upper Austria.

The government's communique said that the Nazi organizations were voluntarily dissolved. It said they had submitted themselves voluntarily to the police.

The pro-government Telegram printed an alleged secret order issued from Berlin instructing all Austrian Nazis who have become well-known to the police as such to withdraw from active leadership and make room for others better qualified to carry on underground activities against the government.

Any Nazis voluntarily submitting themselves to police would be eligible for entry into the German army or enter the fatherland front—the government organization which alone has legal rights of political expression and activity in Austria.

The new Nazi movement left only neutral observers but many government supporters frankly puzzled or suspicious.

'Croppers, Tenants To Get Exemptions

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(AP)—The house agriculture committee today moved to include tenant farmers and sharecroppers in the two-half exemption proposed for small cotton farmers under the Bankhead control act, after hearing farm administration adjustment officials argue such a policy would destroy the program.

Cully A. Cobb, AAA cotton chief, told the committee the administration thought best to apply the exemption only to small farmers owning their own farms, adding that to include sharecroppers and tenants working on the farms of landlords would complicate the administration of the act.

Members of the committee, however, contended sharecroppers and tenants were as much individual farmers as small producers who own their own land and should be entitled to the exemption.

WILSON SERVES NOTICE ANY PART MUST ACTUALLY REDUCE WEAPONS.

GENEVA, Feb. 25.—(UP)—Hugh Wilson served notice tonight that the United States is ready to fight the British attempt to draft a weak arms traffic agreement. He informed the traffic committee Washington was strengthening his original plan, reinforcing the very features to which Britain objects most strongly.

Opening discussion on the fourth chapter of the American plan to control arms traffic—establishing a permanent disarmament commission—Wilson announced he intended to offer an amendment widening the commission's power to investigate the arms manufacture and trade within territories of the different nations.

Lord Stanhope of Britain at previous meetings opposed the plan's provisions for investigations and proposed the projected commission only receive reports from the governments concerned, which it would examine at Geneva.

"The original plan does not provide the universal use of inspection committees," Wilson said, "namely, reporting evidence of the eyesight of the inspectors. This is not our purpose—We are purposeful to offer an amendment."

He insisted the inspectors from the League be given the right to go to the special report that they hear as well as what they hear. Wilson added, however, that the United States is ready to meet any well-founded objections concerning the proposed inspection committee. "This inspection must be efficacious, but it must not be irritating or a nuisance."

Italy joined Britain in criticizing the American plan for arms traffic control, which also suggests licensing all arms manufacturers, as well as full publicity on the output of public and private arms concerns at any time. The Italian delegate commented that "the League is far from being universal and is not binding on all."

"I've heard the suggestion that the League have its own flag, but I suggest the following motto: 'God save us from our friends, but not from our enemies we save ourselves.'"

William Borger, of Denmark, strongly criticized the British for blocking the American plan, after agreeing it as the basis for discussion at the committee's meetings, which are trying to draw up a convention to be submitted to the world arms conference, now adjourned.

$50,000 BONDS SET FOR HARVEY, SMITH

There was a severe bruise on my left arm.

"We ran up the hill and Smith reached into my car and removed the ignition key belonging to Mr. Ford and myself, and a canvas bag containing the mill pay roll. Then both jumped into their machine and sped."

Bandits' Clothing Described. Palmer described the clothing worn by the bandits, saying that Harvey was dressed in a blue shirt with a collar and dark trousers. Smith, he testified, wore a khaki shirt and trousers, with a gray hat. He was wearing a watch, however, which Smith carried in an automatic pistol. The weapon appeared to be a "large as a cannon," he stated.

The assistant district attorney concluded his case with Palmer's testimony, whereupon the defense counsel called Mr. Ford to the witness stand. Ford testified that he had a revolver in his hand when halted by the bandits, but that he dropped it on the floor of the car.

"Weren't you sent along to guard that pay roll?" Mr. Borger inquired.

"Yes, but I wasn't sent along to get shot," the witness replied candidly.

Ford Identifies Smith. Ford, a teller at the bank, was unable to identify Harvey as one of the bandits, but was positive that Smith was the man who menaced him with a pistol.

After hearing the two witnesses, Commissioner Griffith set the bonds of the pair at $50,000 each and they were returned to their room, where they will probably be held until the meeting of the federal grand jury March 11. If indicted by the grand jury they will be tried before Judge E. M. Martin Underwood in the Rome court.

The two ex-convicts, both of them notorious escape artists, were brought into the courtroom by Chief Deputy Sheriff H. C. Campbell and Deputy Marshal W. M. Millsaps. They were handcuffed to the deputies on the ride from Fulton tower to the federal building, but sat handcuffed together during the trial.

Harvey and Smith were pardoned a year ago by Governor Eugene Talmadge after spectacular crime careers that netted them chain gang sentences of more than 100 years each. They were arrested in Richmond, Va., recently and accused of being members of a safe-blowing gang.

Both are under indictment in Fulton county superior court on charges of holding up a Marietta street car on August 9. Arthur Powell, another attorney representing Harvey, tried to encourage them to always tell me, then after these children I reasoned together, we seemed closer to each other.

The time, as well as many others in our midst, should around the operation of far more than the few trying to assist in protecting our homes.

LEAF CONTRACTS ADJUSTED BY AAA

Flue-Cured Growers Offered Special Base Pact for 1935.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(UP)—Two important adjustments affecting 1935 tobacco production contracts were announced tonight by the agricultural adjustment administration.

Producers of flue-cured, burley, fire-cured and dark air-cured tobacco who, because of circumstances beyond their control, such as weather, disease and financial distress, did not grow enough tobacco in 1931, 1932 or 1933 are offered a special base contract for 1935. This contract will enable them to obtain equitable production allotments under the regular tobacco adjustment contracts.

The second adjustment, affecting the flue-cured tobacco contracts for 1935, is offered to tobacco growers in Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida.

Producers who sign the special base contract will be eligible to receive tax-payment warrants to cover the production allotments for their contracts. These warrants may be used to pay the tax levied by the Kerr-Smith tobacco act.

A grower is eligible to sign this

East Point Motorist Held in Fatal Crash

Paul Bell, of East Point, was bound over to the superior court on a charge of involuntary manslaughter Monday afternoon in connection with the automobile accident Sunday night which caused the death of a young man identified early Monday morning as Marvin Pollard, of Union City.

Pollard was instantly killed late Sunday at Newman avenue and Main street in East Point, when his skull was crushed in the collision of his car and one driven by Bell.

Police held Bell for recorder's court trial Monday in East Point, and after he was bound over, his bond was set at $500.

The body of Pollard was taken to Fairburn, where arrangements for the funeral were to be announced by Bishop & Poe, undertakers. He is survived by his mother and several brothers.

Bell pleaded not guilty to charges against him. Police said his car struck Pollard's machine head on.

contract if it can be established that:

(1) the farm which he is operating is equipped for tobacco production and tobacco was grown thereon in one or more of the years 1929 to 1934, inclusive; or (2) the persons who are living on the farm in 1935 were engaged in the production of tobacco in the years 1929 to 1934.

Under the second adjustment offered by the agricultural administration, a provision is made which permits a contracting producer with a base acreage of 3.2 acres or less to plant his base acreage or three acres whichever is smaller, provided he agrees that no payment shall be made under his contract for 1935.

This ruling also provides for upward adjustments in the base acreage and production for contracts which are determined to have an abnormally low base, and for downward adjustments for contracts in which the acreage or production figures have been found since acceptance to be higher than the correct figures.

Recognition of the outstanding work done by Fulton County 4-H Club boys and girls during 1934 was accorded Monday when they were declared winners of the state-wide "Progress Contest" conducted by the 4-H organization.

As a result of their meritorious work, the Fulton county boys and girls will have their 1934 program submitted in a national competition against winning counties of 47 other states, according to Miss Lucille Turner, assistant state 4-H club leader.

During the past year the Fulton girls' department of the 4-H Club carried 25,927 cans of fruit and vegetables. In addition the girls carried off many prizes in clothing, canning and leadership. In the boys' department, one Fulton county youth raised 1,010 pounds of lint cotton on one acre of ground. Likewise, the boys ranked high in contests in raising all products grown in this state.

Activities of the 4-H Club in the county are in charge of S. D. Truitt and Miss Opal Ward, county and home demonstration agents, respectively, and C. B. Gladin and Rubye Nance, assistant agents.

Interesting features of 4-H Club work during the last year included camps, short courses, fairs, livestock judging teams, social entertainments and regular meetings. Officials of the co-operative extension work in agriculture and home economics of the state were high in their praise of the club work being done in Fulton county, and the opinion was expressed that the report of accomplishments here would rank high in competition with other states.

GRACE PROTESTS WAR PROFIT BAN

Nye Committee Delves Into War Profits of Bethlehem President.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Eugene G. Grace, president of the Bethlehem Steel Company, bluntly told the senate munitions committee today that he was opposed to the plan to tax away all profits of munitions manufacturers in time of war.

His stand was taken a few minutes before the committee produced testimony that he had received combined bonuses from the Bethlehem Steel Company and the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation totaling $12,282,000 in 18 years. The questioning of Grace was preparatory to inquiry tomorrow into naval building contracts held by the latter company.

Senator Clark, democrat, Missouri, committee member, listening to the reading of the bonus earning, termed them: "Nifty."

The Missouriian then asked Grace: "Do you see why a skilled mechanic should be drafted and capital left to operate at a profit? What is the difference between capital and between capital and man power?"

"There is a difference," Grace replied, and added:

"I think we should be fairly compensated for use of private invested capital."

The interchange occurred during questioning as to whether he approved a universal draft of men and industry in time of war, with a 100 per cent tax on industrial profits.

Got Three Million During War.

"I can't conceive of the government taking over an institution industry, and telling the men at the head to go on and run it," Grace asserted. "That is not government."

Rocking back in a swivel chair before the committee, he declared war time did not justify a change in the relative pay received by individuals in industry and in the army. To compel an industrial executive to take an army officer's pay for operating a shipbuilding plant, he said, would "disjoint the whole system."

"Greatest efficiency comes from having the individual interested in the results of the work he performs," Grace declared.

"Did the corporation or the government get additional service from you because of that bonus during the war that it would not have received otherwise," Chairman Nye, republican, North Dakota, asked.

"Certainly not," Grace replied. "I never gave it a thought."

From the records the committee disclosed that Grace had received $3,689,000 in bonus during the three war years beginning with 1917 when he was head both of the steel corporation and of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, and more than $8,613,000 since, in addition to salary.

Questioned on Draft.

"Would you be opposed to a 100 per cent tax on profits?" Nye asked.

"I would. The company couldn't operate."

"Can you see the difference between that and drafting a man for $1.25 a day to go out against bullets and gas?" Clark asked.

"I wonder if it wouldn't be right," Grace countered, "to pay the soldier more, $5 a day or even more."

"Have you ever protested that this was not done?" Nye snapped.

"No," Grace replied calmly. "I am not a student of war."

He declared government ownership would not be efficient.

"But suppose an officer walked into your plant and told you you were drafted," Clark asked, "and he told you the train was still running out to Leavenworth (penitentiary), what would you do?"

"I would do the very best I could," Grace replied.

The records disclosed that Grace received a salary of $12,000 a year from 1917 to 1930. In 1930 his bonus was reduced but his salary was increased to $101,000 a year. From 1932 to 1934 no bonus was paid but his salary was increased to $150,000 a year.

Corporation earnings in the 18-year period were disclosed to be about $40,000,000.

LIFE INSURANCE FIRM REPORTS RECORD YEAR

The John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company, of Boston, passed the billion dollar mark in payments to policyholders and beneficiaries during 1934 and enjoyed the largest income of any year in its long history, according to the report of the board of directors, submitted by President Walton L. Crocker to the seventy-second annual policyholders' meeting.

Substantial increases in assets, insurance written and in force as well as in surplus, were also shown, according to F. Walter Powell, general agent for Georgia.

New paid-for insurance written during the year, the report shows, amounted to $532,659,313 (an increase over the previous year of $37,591,500) and representing a gain of 11 per cent in ordinary insurance; 20 per cent in group insurance and 5 per cent in weekly premium insurance, said Mr. Powell.

Outstanding insurance amounts to $3,473,967,189, a gain of $62,258,807, and payments to policyholders and beneficiaries in 1934 amounted to $91,877,154.03.

The total assets as of December 31, are $684,965,707.45, an increase over last year of $28,401,401.11. After deducting all contractual liabilities of $622,249,522.73, including $569,442,629, for reserves on policies in force, and $15,709,182.10 set aside to meet dividend requirements for the present year, the company has a contingency reserve for asset fluctuation of $16,000,000, and, in addition, general surplus funds of $15,316,244.70, making total surplus resources of $61,816,244.70.

In keeping with its policy of preserving sufficient liquidity to meet unusual demands, the company has on hand in cash and in United States government obligations, direct and contingent, and other securities, all maturing within the next five years, more than $100,000,000.

Our Service is NEVER PERFECT

ONE afternoon recently, I wandered into a meeting. The entire staff of the bank, officers and employees were in "a huddle." It was most interesting to learn that the same kind of a meeting was going on in every office of the bank throughout Georgia.

"This is what might be called a group in Self-Improvement," one of the officers explained. "We are working on the principle that no matter how good our service may be, there is always room for improvement. That will always be the spirit of the CITIZENS & SOUTHERN—do the best we know how and in the meanwhile study how we can make it better."

"Customers can help us in this planning. After all they receive the service. Our organization serves more than 200,000 customers. It is easy to understand that there is a varied demand which embraces almost every problem that might come to a bank."

"The fact that these thousands have come and have remained customers indicates that they have been well served. Nevertheless, if a bank customer can suggest something which will create greater convenience or smoother operation, that suggestion will receive close consideration, because we are always working on the principle that our service is never perfect."

Problems of Parents Discussed In Lecture by Dr. F. H. Richardson

Dr. Frank Howard Richardson, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Black Mountain, N. C., appeared before the parents of the Fritz Orr Club at the Piedmont Driving Club Monday afternoon in an informal program devoted to parents' problems. Dr. Richardson, who has lectured in this city before on similar topics, had been asked by the mothers' committee who acted as hostesses, to discuss as his subject "Obedience, Discipline, Punishment, What Sort of Discipline Do Parents Want; and How Can They Get It?"

Dr. Richardson told the group of parents present that one of the commonest questions asked him by fathers and mothers was how they should discipline their children. An even commoner question was how they could get obedience. Commoner still was the agonized query, "How must I punish my child?"

The speaker, himself the father of five children, confessed to begin with that he was among the vast majority of parents who do not understand much about how children's minds work. He quoted Dr. Young, prominent psychiatrist of Atlanta and consultant to the Fritz Orr Club, to the effect that no one knows intimately how or what children think; and he cautioned his hearers against the too much knowledge that is a dangerous thing.

Different Methods Needed. Parents must determine beforehand, the speaker urged, just what type of discipline they want to impose upon their children. That is, some parents unconsciously desire a blind, unquestioning compliance with their every whim. Others look further into the future, and are willing to have their children develop some initiative as well as an ability to choose for themselves as to what may be the wisest course to pursue. Such different aims call, he believes, for entirely different methods.

The speaker pointed out that this willingness to give a child some latitude in his obedience, was by no means consistent with firmness and a determination to exact instant obedience where that was necessary. In other words, there are many parents whose desire is less to develop their children than it is to get from them the pleasant sense of power that all of us crave. Such parents, he thought, were those who were constantly giving unnecessary commands, many of them of such a nature that compliance with them was utterly impossible. The child of such parents quickly learned, he felt, that disobedience was frequently possible. It was then, of course, increasingly difficult to enforce obedience when important and necessary commands were given.

"Command" Impulse Curbed. Dr. Richardson showed by examples that the wise parent, whose interest was not in the gratification of show-off obedience but rather that of developing the ultimate self-control and self-command of the well-disciplined adult, controls his impulse to constantly order this and command that. Instead, he limits his commands to the things that are necessary, and then enforces implicit obedience to these at whatever the cost.

Dr. Richardson showed that a child is free to develop a sense of what is right and what is wrong, that he can no longer depend upon his father or mother, but must make decisions for himself. At the same time he learns that there are forces of right and wrong that are superior to his whims, and to these he must yield obedience, whether he likes it or not. The parent who gives only necessary commands is on firm ground when he insists that they be obeyed; whereas the one who constantly babbling, unthinkingly and in reality trains him to disobey, rather than to obey.

Relieves Parents' Feelings. In conclusion, the point was clearly brought out that most punishments are designed, not to fit the crime, but to relieve the feelings of the parent, respectively of what good or harm they accomplish. He insisted that a punishment that did not make the offense less likely to be repeated, was worse than none at all. He cited the poor army officer who was constantly talking about discipline, or strive for it, but got it by the way he limited his commands but exacted absolute compliance with those issued.

After the talk, there was a free discussion of problems from the floor. When this had to be terminated, problems were brought up for discussion in private, by specially interested parents.

Dr. Richardson, who has a consulting practice in New York and is director of the children's clinic in Black Mountain, N. C., emphasized the fact that he was not a psychologist, but a physician. He is known to many Atlantans through previous appearances before the parents of the Fritz Orr Club, and from the fact that he is consulting physician to several of the city's finest hospitals.

When this had to be terminated, problems were brought up for discussion in private, by specially interested parents.

CHICAGO, Feb. 25.—(UP)—Mrs. Victoria Hernandez, 60, has been imprisoned in her bedroom for eight years because she weighs 600 pounds and ordinary doors aren't big enough to let her through.

She emerged today for the first time, carried on the shoulders of six porters, after being confined in her room for eight years because she weighs 600 pounds and ordinary doors aren't big enough to let her through.

"Need any help?" he asked joyfully.

Mrs. Hernandez was put aboard the truck in what amounted to a lift.

FOLLIES GIRL

By MARGARET GORHAM NICHOLS

INSTALLMENT XXIV.

Mr. Arnold chuckled. "I would say that you sing as though your heart was in it."

Felice and Carl could scarcely conceal their amusement.

"Would you," Tony's mother asked, "sing for us after dinner?"

Sherry was glad after she had sung a few songs that the Arnolds retired early. Mrs. Arnold was not well and her husband said, "I tried to persuade her to stay in Boston but she insisted on accompanying me."

And Tony's mother had said, "It must be a sign of approaching senility not to be satisfied in one's own home."

Sherry saw them go upstairs together, Mrs. Arnold's lace dinner dress trailing the steps, her arm through her husband's.

She said to Carl, "They didn't ostracize me because I'm a nightclub singer."

"I could tell they thought you a very refined girl. Forgive Felice and me for being amused. We know it wasn't an amusing situation for you."

"I'm amused myself, but the joke is on me. I'm not laughing at them. Have you ever liked people and had made up your mind to dislike them? I couldn't hate two people who are old and sick, even though they made a terrible mistake with the boy I happen to love."

The next afternoon when Felice was showing Mr. Arnold the farm, Sherry came out on the side veranda and found herself alone with Tony's mother. In the cruel daylight Mrs. Arnold looked tired and old despite her expensive clothes and well groomed appearance. Sherry thought, "It's wonderful to grow old gracefully. This woman's hands have never worked and my mother's hands worked for Tony; this woman's son, when she would have nothing to do with him. Could she help but feel bitter toward this woman?"

Mrs. Arnold looked up from the magazine on her lap and said, "You interest me. You seem to be such a nice girl, my dear. I didn't think that unburned bodies and clear eyes and refusal of cigarettes went with being a professional entertainer."

Sherry sat on the ledge of the veranda. She said, "If I had been a nurse or a secretary. I could have supported only myself. But by commercializing what little talent I have, I have been able to help a great many others."

She thought, "I helped your son, Mrs. Arnold, when he was sick and broke. My singing paid for his room and his meals."

"I dare say," said Mrs. Arnold, "those of us who have never faced the problem of earning our own living are a bit prejudiced. I quite agree with you."

"I don't say," said Mrs. Arnold, "that you are a bit prejudiced. I quite agree with you."

Sherry moved restlessly, seeing Felice come across the lawn with Mr. Arnold.

"I'd rather not, if you don't mind. You see, our stories are so much alike," and left Mrs. Arnold to ponder over her parting words.

She got into Felice's riding clothes, went to the stables and rode over the fields on a silky black mare. And she never knew, of course, that Mrs. Arnold remarked to Felice, who smiled wisely, "Sherry Ross has a mind of her own."

But the conversation, stopped abruptly, was to be continued again that evening between Sherry and Tony's mother. It was as if Mrs. Arnold's curiosity had been piqued and she was anxious to know more of the girl who kept her affairs to herself and told only enough to stir the imagination.

After dinner Sherry went out on the veranda to be alone and when she turned, Tony's mother was standing beside her. In the darkness Sherry could not see her face, but her voice, with certain inflections reminiscent of Tony, spoke.

"It isn't usual to find a young girl so sympathetic toward an older woman," she said. "It was sweet of you, my dear, to listen so patiently. Is it because your own young man is away?"

"Perhaps," Sherry said. "Perhaps my young man's people don't approve of me because I'm not... not society."

Mrs. Arnold was almost indignant. "But you are a charming girl."

"But I sing in a night club."

The DEBUNKER

By John Harvey Farley, Ph.D.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

PAGODAS OF CHINA.

A pagoda is a tower; and as a rule it is a temple, or part of a temple. The name may be said to mean "house of gods," though foreigners have translated it as "house of idols." There are pagodas in India, Siam and Japan, as well as in China.

An old statement about the dragon was that it brought good fortune; but there were persons who feared it. Frank Carpenter, noted traveler, reported that he had read in a Chinese newspaper a warning before an eclipse of the moon. It was supposed that a dragon would try to swallow the moon, and people were told to "make a great noise so as to scare away the dragon."

A dragon of a size that could swallow the moon would need to have a throat almost as wide as the Atlantic ocean.

The flowery pagoda of Canton is famed because it contains a statue of the Buddha which is "one of the art treasures of the world."

The city of Soochow is the home of eight pagodas, ranging in age from 300 to 1,300 years. The oldest in the group is tilted, and has been compared to the Leaning Tower of Pisa. Another is the highest now standing in China, rising more than 250 feet above the ground. It has nine stories, and its outer walls are 10 feet thick. It is known as the Great Pagoda. Nanking contained, in former times, the famous Porcelain Pagoda. It was set up by order of Prince Yung Lo, in honor of his wife, 500 years ago. It was cast in white porcelain, which accounts for the name. The plan was to have 13 stories, but only nine were built. Even so, the height was about 260 feet. The Porcelain Pagoda was destroyed in 1856 by Christian Chinese who had captured the city, and who wanted to keep the people from worship of idols. Longfellow wrote a poem about the Porcelain Pagoda.

COAST COUNTIES FORM CATTLE ASSOCIATION

I. F. Arnow, of St. Marys, Heads New Organization Framed at Kingsland.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Feb. 25.—(P)—Cattlemen in the lower coastal Georgia counties have been organized into the Camden County Livestock Association with I. F. Arnow, of St. Marys, as president and Lucius Proctor, of Woodbine, as secretary.

The advantages of the organization, of breed improvement through purchase of purebred bulls, of screw worm control, and the value of tuberculosis tests, were stressed in talks made at the organization meeting held Friday at Kingsland.

Talks were made by J. Claud Epling, of Savannah; J. G. Woodruff, chairman of the Savannah livestock development committee; C. G. Arnett, president of the Southeastern Cattlemen's Association; L. H. Marlett, extension animal husbandman in Georgia; Dr. W. E. Dove, federal entomologist from Savannah; Dr. J. E. White, state veterinarian, and others.

The Camden county members were invited to attend the livestock show to be held here April 1-2.

At the preliminary hearing held today, Nelson stated he shot in self-defense when North threatened members of his family with a knife.

Demonstrators Storm House of Commons

LONDON, Feb. 25.—(UP)—Five hundred foot and 50 mounted police were rushed to the vicinity of parliament today to quell a riot of demonstrators who broke into the building and around the house of commons against the MacDonald ministry's unemployment relief bill.

Demonstrators were massing about parliament, reportedly to aid their comrades inside the commons lobby and galleries, where disturbances occurred earlier in the evening.

The mob inside the building increased to 400 angry men, together with several women.

They suddenly burst into a chorus, chanting: "Down with the national government!"

They sought to surround members of the house, but police promptly charged, shouting defiance, and marching in the direction of White Hall.

Callaway Mills Open Own School To Teach Employees Textile Subjects

By E. D. BALL, Associated Press Staff Writer. LAGRANGE, Ga., Feb. 25.—(P)—The cotton textile industry today contributed a new idea to the field of vocational education in a mill-owned school here where workers may obtain the equivalent to a college education in textile engineering.

Founded by the Callaway Mills for the benefit of their 6,000 employees, the school here where workers may obtain the equivalent to a college education in textile engineering.

It is our purpose not to give a general smattering of what goes on in a cotton mill," he said, "but to give the men and women a specific knowledge of every phase of a textile plant and equip them so that when they finish the school they will be able to hold down any job in the mill."

Callaway said enrollment was voluntary and that the school's 300 available places have been spoken for. He said new classes would be organized each week to absorb the students in the various courses.

The school was built at a cost of approximately $75,000 and looks like any college building. The classrooms are limited to 15 desks and the laboratory houses a model mill which provides a study of the evolution of cotton from the raw, fluffy material to the finished product.

Slow-Motion Machines. In addition, there is hand-operated machinery to give the workers a slow-motion picture of what takes place as they bend over their whirling machines in the mill each day.

The 11 mills of the Callaway group—in which it is estimated one out of every 100 bales of cotton produced in the United States is processed—are located within a radius of 100 miles of LAGRANGE.

Callaway said a plan was under consideration to transfer workers from the other mills to the ones here temporarily to permit them to complete the courses of study.

One of House's Four Republicans Says Party Lines Down in Towns

One of the four republicans in the Georgia legislature said Monday he believed his county had one of the best political systems in the state because "the democrats watch the republicans and the republicans watch the democrats and we keep one another on their toes for good government."

J. E. Barnard, representative from Towns county, said he had been a republican all his life but that voters of his strongly republican county did not follow party lines strictly.

"We elect our county officials on a merit basis and if the democrats put up a better man than the republicans, why the republicans just go along and vote for the democrat and think nothing about it. It seems to me that this is a pretty good system. We try to keep partisan politics out of official service and there are a great many more democrats in our school system than there are republicans."

There are two other republicans in the house, Carl DeLoach, of Pickens, and R. G. Hampton, of Fannin county. One of the 51 senators, C. W. Kiker, is a republican representing a group of official service and there are a great many more democrats in our school system than there are republicans."

Barnard says "some people look at republicans as a sort of curiosity in Georgia," but that "the house members and members of the house themselves have been mighty nice to me and I have never been treated better by anyone."

Barnard says he will vote "bone dry" on the liquor question. He says that in his voting in the house he follows neither republican nor democratic party platforms but "vote the way I think best."

WASHINGTON, Ga., Feb. 25.—Mr. and Mrs. Boyce Ficklen Sr. tomorrow will observe their sixty-first wedding anniversary, followed the next day by the celebration of Mrs. Ficklen's eighty-second birthday anniversary.

Both were born and reared and lived to be octogenarians in Wilkes, their native county, where Mr. Ficklen lived for 22 years before he met Miss Mary Rembert Hill, as she was graduating from LaGrange Female College.

For more than 50 years Mrs. Ficklen has been and still is the teacher of a Sunday school class of men, was one of the organizers of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Wilkes Georgia conference, and was its treasurer for years.

Mr. Ficklen has served his county as tax collector and treasurer and a member of the general assembly for 10 sessions without missing a roll call, and introducing only two bills, was president of three banks and the editor of two newspapers. He is active at 83.

Man Who Knew Death Is Now Really Dead

TYLER, Texas, Feb. 25.—(P)—W. A. Strange—the man who "died"—was revived five minutes later with an adrenalin injection into his still-beating heart—died tonight, five days after being pronounced "dead."

The 71-year-old former sheriff of Smith county had been kept alive meanwhile by use of an oxygen tent. Last Wednesday Strange went to the office of Dr. Howard Bryant, seriously ill. His heart stopped beating and his breathing halted as he lay on an operating table.

Dr. Bryant pronounced him dead and an undertaker was summoned. Five minutes later Dr. Bryant decided to use adrenalin in an attempt to resuscitate the man. He responded and feebly remarked:

"I sure thought I was gone that time, doctor."

He was placed under the oxygen tent and until today physicians had believed he would recover.

Strange never talked of sensations during the five minutes his heart and lungs failed to function.

Returning to the scene, the patrolmen saw two other persons loitering near the same building and placed them under arrest. They gave the names of E. C. Wheeler, 29, of Curran street, and D. M. Wheeler, Jr., 23, of Curran street, and said they were brothers. They had in their possession three ounces of nitroglycerine, fuses and four dynamite caps. All four are being held for investigation.

FLOOD YOUR BODY WITH STRENGTH

Feel the bracing effect from first swallow

So many people are undernourished, and so shaky they can't stand much exertion, because excessive acidity in the stomach destroys the gastric fluids. Then food can't digest. Instead of nourishment your body gets what comes from the fermenting mass that forms gas, heartburn and acid indigestion. That can't do you any good.

Ask your druggist for a three ounce package of Placidin. Drink some water with a teaspoonful of Placidin in it several times during the day. Besides that, before going to sleep. People who take Placidin regularly when the doctor says anything like this before Placidin will do what you have been expecting from the many things you have been taking because Placidin is the cause of... excessive acidity. Placidin is not laxative. Contains no sugar.—(adv.)

STATE REGULATION OF PEDDLERS SOUGHT

Vegetable Growers' Body To Seek Control of Out-side Truckers.

CLARKSTON, Ga., Feb. 25.—(P)—State regulation of produce peddlers, as a means of making the proposed state farm market plan more successful, will be advocated at a meeting in Atlanta Thursday of Georgia Vegetable Growers by R. F. Sams, head of the Georgia association, Sams said tonight.

"The farm market bill is a good thing if we can regulate the peddlers, just as other states regulate them," said Sams.

"Peddlers can bring produce into Georgia and sell it in competition with the local growers, and when they take Georgia produce into other states they are compelled to pay licenses of from $100 to $500," Sams said.

Sams said a peddler's license, and a pure seed law would be among "necessary legislation" to be discussed at the meeting Thursday. Sams is president of the National Vegetable Growers' Association, as well as of the Georgia association.

Freight rates will be another matter to be discussed, he said.

UPSON FARMERS PLAN ONE-VARIETY COTTON

THOMASTON, Ga., Feb. 25.—Some 300 Upson county farmers held a meeting in the courthouse here and perfected arrangements to use only one type of cotton this year, and Stoneville No. 2 will be the variety.

C. A. McLendon in an address to the farmers urged the use of only one variety. R. P. Bledsoe, of the state experiment station at Griffin, reported results of the various kinds of cotton at the meeting.

Ezard, Lawrenceville; Dr. Charlie Keller, Lilburn, and Dr. W. T. Hinton, Decatur, have been named on the board.

Beware Chest Colds

If you have tried various remedies for that chest cold without getting relief, you probably need Creomulsion, but before buying it, go to a reliable druggist in your neighborhood and ask him all about Creomulsion. He knows what's in it. Creomulsion is carefully prepared by those who are willing to pay a trifle more for the best. The best is the cheapest in the long run. Ask your druggist what he thinks of Creomulsion for Coughs and Chest Colds.—(adv.)

Mrs. Davenport Pogue's Arrival Quickens Pace of Social Affairs

By Sally Forth.

AS A HALFWAY mark between the east and America's Riviera, Atlanta enjoys the frequent pleasure of entertaining charming visitors, who find the city a pleasant spot in which to break the journey, to renew friendships and make new ones. A welcome in the form of a series of social affairs will mark the arrival from New York today of Mrs. Davenport Pogue, who is on her way south. Her visit here, of course, will be with her devoted friend, Mrs. Edgar Upton, at her home on Peachtree street. One just naturally likes to associate these two charming young matrons, as they have been close friends for years, and it is with a high degree of pleasure that the contemporaries of the two are looking forward to Mrs. Pogue's arrival.

Mrs. Pogue will be recalled as the former Mary Hopkins, who made her home here for several years. This time she is en route to join her mother, Mrs. George M. Hopkins, who is spending the winter under the sunny skies of Florida. It will be like old times to see Mary and Marion Upton riding around together, dashing off to bridge and teas, and chatting every minute over happenings which have occurred since their last meeting. It was last year that Marion visited the Pogues at their handsome winter home, Windsong House, overlooking Riddell's bay in Bermuda, and was an admired figure at the round of smart social affairs which mark the winter social calendar at the fashionable resort.

Windsong House is one of the oldest and most beautiful estates in the near-by British possession and is a popular rendezvous for gatherings among the social and cultural circles there. The Pogues, however, forsook the British Islands this year for the winter colony in Miami. While not occupying their Bermuda home, Irving Berlin and his wife, Ellen Mackay Berlin, are at Windsong House.

THERE was a time when a $10 tip did not create a ripple of excitement, but in these days of gold clause complications a ten-spot, passed out to the waiter who serves dinner for two, is slightly less conspicuous than the Graf Zeppelin. Even in blase New York it causes the populace to wonder.

In fact, such a display of generosity made such an impression on one eastern family that an investigation ensued. It seems that a popular young Atlanta, who is studying at one of the well-known universities in the east, was the cause of it all. You see, he met and, in college vernacular, "fell for" a lovely belle who is also a student at the university. He paid her marked attention. He took her dining and dancing. He sent her orchids and gardenias—odds of them. He called for her in his long, rakish motor. He gave every indication of affluence and position. Then came the evening of the $10 tip.

Her family grew curious. Was this dashing young scion of a prominent southern family born with a golden spoon in his mouth, or was he lavishing his year's allowance on their daughter just to be impressive?

Sally admits that perhaps they have a right to be inquisitive, in view of his ardent attentions. And she would like to tell them that he is not a "four-flusher," that his wealth is bona fide—and that with it all he is a born aristocrat!

LITTLE Anne Arkwright, age 5, her young cousin, Gilmore Green Jr., who is 10, and Nonie Childs, who is 5, are inseparable playmates.

One day last week, Anne was in a confidential mood. She said to her pretty young mother, Mrs. Preston Arkwright Jr.: "Mother, Nonie is going to marry Gilly when she grows up." Gilly being the name given Gilmore Jr. by his playmates.

"Well, what does Gilly think of it?" queried Mrs. Arkwright. Whereupon Anne nonchalantly replied, "Oh, we haven't told him about it yet."

WHEN it's cherry blossom time in Washington, maids and matrons, representatives of Revolutionary War heroes, will assemble for the forty-fourth Continental Congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution. And among the lovely pages participating in the congress will be Miss Claire Ivy, of West Point, Miss. and a graduate of Agnes Scott College in 1934.

Claire was selected by Mrs. A. L. Bondurant, of Oxford, Miss., and she will entrain late in April for the national capital. She is a most distinctive young person and will add grace and charm to her role. During her school days in Atlanta she spent much of her time with her maternal uncle and aunt, Captain John R. Dinsmore, U. S. A., and Mrs. Dinsmore, at Fort McPherson, where she was identified with the social life of the army's younger set.

Junior Hadassah Will Sell Tickets For Adler Show

The daughter of the late Jacob P. Adler, peer of the Yiddish stage, Miss Adler began her career at the early age of two, and not only includes in her repertoire a long list of Yiddish successes, but has also starred in the classics of Dumas, Tolstoi, Gorki, Andreans and Bernard Shaw.

The burden of the comedy, an eternal triangle, from the French by Victorien Sardou, falls upon Elizabeth Pinkston, as "Cyprienne des Prunelles," Sterling Lanier as the husband, "Henri des Prunelles," and Walter Paschall as "Adhemar de Gratignan."

The Real Secret of Beautifying the Skin

She holds the true secret of facial beauty who has learned how to remove the dead skin particles as fast as they appear. Yet, it's a secret anyone may possess. The faded, or discolored surface skin may be gradually absorbed in an entirely safe and rational manner, by the nightly application of pure Mercolized Wax. Soon the underlying skin, youthful and beautiful to behold, has taken the place of the discarded cuticle. So little of the old skin is absorbed each day there's no inconvenience at all, and no one suspects you are putting anything on your face. The Mercolized Wax procurable at any drug store is applied like cold cream. Mercolized Wax brings out the hidden beauty of your skin. Powdered Saxatite reduces wrinkles and other age lines. Simply dissolve one ounce Saxatite in one-half pint with basal and use daily as an astringent lotion.—(adv.)

Relieve Periodic Pain and Discomfort

"Next time" try Lydia E. Pinkham's Tablets. These women tell you how good they are.

MRS. CAROLINE NEWMAN Rt. #1, Barboursville, West Virginia

"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Tablets for painful periods. I used to suffer severe pains in my back and had to stay in bed most of the day. Your Tablets were recommended by a friend. Since taking them I am greatly relieved of the pains."—Mrs. Caroline Newman.

Was In Bed Two Days

Mrs. Sara Stearns, 676 West Willis Ave., Detroit, Michigan says: "All during the month I felt fine until those terrible pains came. I used to stay in bed two days. Your Tablets stopped the pain and I recommend them highly."

"They Stopped the Pain"

"Every month I was in bed a day or two. These Tablets stopped the pain. I am not bothered any more."—Mrs. Grace L. Botonis, 1761 East 105th Street, Los Angeles, California.

Mrs. Bob Mobley, 3105 Belmont Ave., Tampa, Florida says,

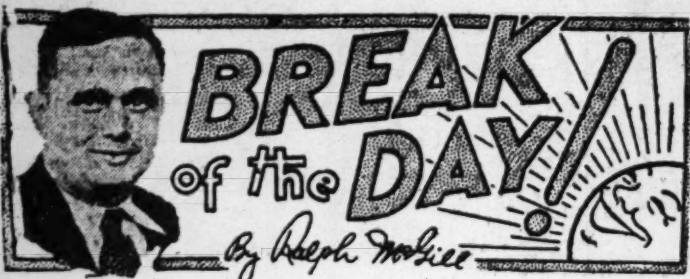

"My back used to bother me periodically. Your medicine is wonderful. I have no more trouble."

The modern woman can't be bothered with cramps and menstrual discomforts. Periodic upsets are not going to interfere with her normal activities if she can help it. And she can.

Next month try Lydia E. Pinkham's Tablets. They relieve periodic pain and discomfort such as backache and headache. It's silly to suffer when the trial size is only 25 cents. At your drug store.

Great Equipoise, Hard Luck King of Turf, Is Retired

"Do you know anything about gulls?" asked Mr. Rutison G. Parker, of New York, who was visiting in our midst. "Nothing except the story about the Irishman who was making his first sea voyage."

"What is that story?"

"Well, it isn't so good. He saw some gulls following the ship and he said to his friend, 'Look at all them pigeons.' 'Them ain't pigeons, they are gulls,' his friend said. 'Well,' said the Irishman, 'gulls or boys, they still are pigeons to me.'"

"Not that sort of story," he said. "Mine is a true story. It's the story of the bombardier gulls of Martha's Vineyard."

"The bombardier gulls?"

"Yes, the bombardier gulls."

"You see, the height of a gull's ambition is to eat clams. But the chances of a gull getting into a clam are negligible. You know what paragon of silence those things are?"

"Well, I have just been up to Martha's Vineyard. It's an island, you know. And there are lots of clams there and lots of gulls. They have built a hard road through the island, a concrete one. And one day a gull, while flying with a clam which the gull hoped would open up, was frightened and dropped the clam. It struck on the road and burst and when the gull went down to investigate it found the clam all ready to eat. 'It got pretty bad for motorists. The gull passed the word and pretty soon the road was littered daily with broken clam shells."

"This went on for some time until one windy day, a very windy day, a gull dropped a clam and the wind caught it and blew it into a field. When the gull went down to investigate it found the clam had struck a field mouse and killed him. So the gull had a sort of clam chowder."

"Well, sir," he said, warming to his subject, "those gulls around Martha's Vineyard got the big idea. They get a clam and they fly over there and spot a field mouse. They drop the clam downwind at the mouse."

"They have got so expert they rarely miss. They could show the army bombers something, let me tell you that. They won't go after the clam unless it hits a mouse. I know you run some nature stories and I thought you might be interested in the bombardier gulls."

I looked sternly at Mr. Parker.

"Oh, don't look so suspicious," he said. "If you don't believe it I will send you some pictures of the very gulls when I get back east."

CALLING THE TURN.

One factor which makes the Kentucky Derby so difficult to call is the distance—a mile and a quarter. Few races in America go that distance, most of them being short of a mile.

As a consequence, most of the training is at that distance. Quite a few of our best horses work well at the mile-and-a-quarter distance, but when it comes to competition—meeting early starts and having enough for that final drive in the stretch—it is something else.

The Santa Anita feature, which was run last Saturday, saw Azucar, an outsider, win, with Ladysman second and Time Supply third. Three years ago Ladysman ran a poor race in the Kentucky Derby, but has evidently improved over the longer distance.

Most interesting is a letter written by Charley Kurtsinger, who rode Twenty Grand to victory in the Derby and Head Play to win the Preakness. The letter, to Bruce Dudley, of the Courier-Journal, written on January 15, more than a month before the Santa Anita feature, said:

"Twenty Grand has been ready to run for two weeks but has been pulled up lame. I hardly think he will stay on edge until the big race on February 23. . . . Head Play worked well but hasn't run in pleasing form. . . . The winner of the race, I think, will be Azucar, if Equipoise doesn't go well. He is sound and the best distance horse in the race. . . . Calvacade is supposed to be a contender, but I don't think he will get anything. . . ."

All of which happens to be calling the turn very smartly indeed. Now, had someone plucked on Charley Kurtsinger's tip when the odds were 20 to 1. . . .

SOME AZUCAR HISTORY.

Azucar, winner of the Santa Anita handicap which paid his owner, Fred Alger, $108,000, has an interesting history.

He was purchased at the Doncaster yearling sales in England for 1,050 guineas in 1929 by J. E. Widener. He was not raced as a 2-year-old. He was raced on the flat five times when three years old and his best was a third.

Widener brought the horse to America as a 4-year-old and made a jumper of him. As late as last June he won the Corinthian handicap at Belmont. Alger purchased him and put him back to running once more.

Azucar belongs to the No. 4 family, according to my file of "The Blood Horse," published at Lexington. The No. 4 family has, for six consecutive years, furnished the most winners.

The No. 4 family are all descendants of the Layton Barb mare and the eminence of the blood line dates to two mares, Maggie B. B. and Miss Obsolete. Maggie B. B. was a chestnut mare foaled in Australia in 1867 and herself was the dam of the Preakness winner Harold, the Belmont and Withers stake winner Panique, and for more than 50 years her daughters have furnished winning horses.

High Glee, another winner this season, is of the No. 4 family, as are Inlander, Hurryoff and Gold Basis, winners in recent years.

All of which seems to prove, although additional proof is not needed, that blood will tell.

SHORT, SHORT STORIES.

Stein Stone, famous Vanderbilt athlete of 1901, scored 50 points in a basketball game against the Mobile Y. M. C. A. to establish the Southern scoring record. The nearest approach was when Leroy Edwards scored 34 against Creighton last week. . . . There is something sad about the retirement of Equipoise. . . . Sun Beau's all-time turf winnings were not upset as Mate and Equipoise were the only two with a chance in the Santa Anita handicap which paid enough to have given either of them the new record had either won. . . . Atlanta and Knoxville sent only one player each to the majors from last year's teams. Nashville led with eight but most of those were players sent there by the Giants and their recall means little. . . . The Crackers really developed Casey and sold him for money. . . . Don Hutson evidently has decided against a baseball career and will try pro football. . . . It will be interesting to see how well his pass-catching goes with no Howell there to throw them. . . . In the picture "Sequoia," which was animal stuff, the two deer were made to kiss by putting molasses on their respective noses and teach them to lick it off. . . . The rattlesnake, which was photographed within six inches of a Chinese baby, was photographed through a section of plate glass which separated the snake and child and the glass, of course, doesn't show in the picture.

LOOKOUTS SEEK CENTER FIELDER TO ADD PUNCH

Pitching, Infield Okay; Powell May Be Sent Down by Nats.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Feb. 25.—Left-handed pitcher in the outfield, embodied in a center fielder who can "scat."

That is the chief lookout goal now that John Mihalic has returned as expected, rounding out a defensively brilliant inner works, the Nats have assured the locals of a catcher and a goodly supply of pitchers, and Minneapolis has sent Harry Hosch.

The entire infield lies from the right side. So does Red Marion in left. Dee Miles, tentatively figured for right, is a wrong-side, and so is Jack Redmond, but still another left-handed batter is sought who can really pound that pellet and who, incidentally, is a center fielder of ability.

In fact, that is all that's needed now to fire the imagination of fandom here and bring back the visions of 1932, which Joe Engel already has brought to mind with pennant boasts calculated to take in not just fans here, but the league at large.

There is a grapevine report that Patrick Powell, the fleet-footed middle infielder, may be dispatched here up from Albany, may be dispatched here to show his stuff. Powell hits right-handed, but after all in a case like this he would do for his hit a cool .361 with the Internats.

ENGEL NOT SURE.

Engel does not seem to be sure that Powell will land here; in fact he is not sure that any fan anywhere will land here, but he will have you know that if not, he will be having one shipped here from elsewhere. In that case, it may be that Minneapolis will have an extra outfielder in the Nats.

As for Powell, if he does come here, that means the Nats will have to do something for him. For that is where Powell came from, and the Nats might be sent there include Lefty Pettitt, Red Kress and Orville Amburst.

I think this Powell connection it is well to note that while the Nats have but five rosters of the pastures, and that is what they plan to carry, Kress can also play the outfield a bit and would serve as fifth utility man there in a pinch. Kress, by the way, has a very slim chance of infield sticking.

The delay in lining up a gardener may be the result of the possibility that Frank Wadley will rejoin the club. The left-handed swatter paced the league two years ago and remained on the voluntarily retired list last season while playing semi-pro ball and working for a rubber company.

MOORE MERGER.

A very interesting matter is the pitcher merger the Nats and Lookouts have effected.

The complete pair of staffs is to be divided up after each preys look over his staff, according to present plans. Let's have a look at the chunking corps.

As soon as the Nats break camp, or before, the Lookouts are likely to get Diggs, right-hander not yet ready for the majors; Lashan, tall, powerful left-hander from Washington hands. Griff regards as a comer, and Scrivener, southpaw sensation from George Washington University, Engel's alma mater. They are all great rookie prospects.

By June 1, or before, the Nats must cut down to the college where men of the caliber of McColl, Cohen and Prim will be cut out. The last year, in another man up from Albany, but, as said before, it is quite possible that such a gent will come here, with Albany getting Pettitt or Amburst instead. Pettitt, it is understood, will not be a Lookout any more. Amburst's ability is yet to be proven as a class A man.

Casey To Report With Early Cubs

Hugh Casey, young Buckhead boy, who signed his contract with the Chicago Cubs several weeks ago, has left for the first time. Casey, of Chicago, is en route to their spring training base at Catalina Island.

Casey, who won 8 and lost 6 with the Crackers last year, was first signed by Manager Harry Grimm of the National League.

The Crackers sold Casey to the Cubs conditionally last fall for a sum exceeding $50,000. He was first signed by the Atlanta club in 1932 and after a great year in the Piedmont league in 1933 came to Atlanta last spring.

He pitched good ball for the Crackers at the latter part of the season.

Boxing, Wrestling Bill Is Introduced

A bill to regulate professional boxing and wrestling in Georgia was introduced in the house yesterday by Representative J. R. Thompson Jr., of Muscogee.

It would create a state boxing and wrestling commission of three members appointed by the governor to serve two years. The board would issue licenses to promoters, levy a 10 per cent gross revenue tax on gate receipts and prescribe rules and regulations for the sports.

Thompson said the bill was designed to elevate the professions and to prevent "frame-ups."

Cards To Repeat, Says Frank Frisch

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 25.—(AP)—The world champion St. Louis Cardinals, in the opinion of Manager Frankie Frisch, have a good chance to repeat their performance this year if the players can avoid a general attack of "itis."

THE SPORT-LIGHT

Another Spring.

It was just 10 years ago this spring that a big, burly young fellow around 24 or 25 swung north with the Boston Red Sox in their exhibition series with McGraw's Giants.

Since that trip he has hit nearly a thousand home runs, including his exhibition game record, and pitchers have walked him in the neighborhood of two thousand times.

There are many yesterday's between today and 1919. I followed him north on that trip where everyone was opposing pitchers—not a thrill from the smooth but savage lash he took at a baseball—a replica in part of Shoeless Joe Jackson's famous swing.

The same burly figure, now standing at the crossroads, a trifle bewildered, still holds the bulk of the game's spotlight.

For the past week they have been talking about the Babe and not about the two pennant races just ahead. I rode out to the St. Albans golf course with him a day or two ago through falling snow, but from start to finish there was one steady chorus all along the beat—'young and old—'Hello, Babe!'

And on the Babe's part it was 'Hello, mom—'Hello, pop—'Hello, kid—'without a miss.

Unforgettable Years.

When the Babe is through, no man in sport will ever have as many memories to carry.

Yes," he said, "I still remember every detail of the first game I pitched. I beat Cleveland 3 to 2."

"Were you a fresh rookie?" I asked him.

"Fresh?" the Babe said. "No, I was scared to death. I couldn't believe I had on a big league uniform. I was afraid I was going to get fired every day."

"What was your biggest pitching thrill?"

"It was either those six games I beat Walter Johnson 1 to 0, or the 20 scoreless World Series innings I pitched. But my biggest thrill was to beat him in the Chicago off Root when I put myself in a spot by kidding the first two strikes while talking to the Cub bench—and then pointing to the service as I walked back to the spot where I either had to come through or be the biggest hum of the year."

"You know when they brought that ball back, one side of it was flat as a brick."

"I remember when I crossed the plate after calling that homer, that Babe Hartner, the Cub catcher, said to me 'You big hum. I hate to do it, but I've got to hand it to you and so has everyone in this park.'"

"I got a kick, too," the Babe said, "out of going into baseball cities that were drawing 2,000 or 2,500 and then seeing them call out the police to keep the fans from coming in."

A triumphant march of 16 years—through big crowds—high speed action—thrill and excitement—something to look back on. I and the Babe remember almost every detail of those 16 years, during which he carried from 230 to 250 pounds at top speed on slender ankles.

More than ten years ago, the late Miller Huggins said one day on a train ride. "You know, Babe, you're a good year, so you ought to start winning all you can." Huggins meant it and the Babe, smoking a big cigar, looked out of the car window and said nothing in reply. He may have felt that Huggins was right.

SENATORS OPEN SPRING TRAINING

BILOXI, Miss., Feb. 25.—(AP)—Determined to make the fans forget the disastrous 1934 season, the Senators plunged from the top of the American league to seventh place, the Washington Senators went to work today to mold a pennant contending club.

The initial workout today marked the sixth successive year the Senators have conducted their spring maneuvers in Biloxi.

Twenty-two players, mostly recruits, were put through light-paced under the direction of Trainer Mike Main, who is in charge of the squad pending the arrival of Manager Bucky Harris, March 1.

The workout today was conducted under the watchful eyes of Joe Cronin, former Boston manager, who was first sent to Boston during the winter and will lead the Sox in the pennant scramble.

Cronin, here with his wife, the former Mildred Griffith, daughter of President Clark Griffith, of the Senators, expected to leave late tonight for Florida to take charge of his new club.

JACK TORRANCE BREAKS INDOOR SHOT RECORD

L. S. U. Star Better 53 Feet; Arnold, Georgia, Wins High Jump.

ARMORY, CHARLOTTE, N. C., Feb. 25.—(AP)—Jack Torrance, Florida State University's 300-pound shotgun ace, exceeded the recognized world indoor record, in the Charlotte indoor games tonight with a toss of 53 feet 1 1/2 inches.

The big tosser from the bayou country was credited with a heavy four and three-fourths inches longer than that established by Leo Sexton, of the New York Athletic Club.

The winning throw was made on canvas gymnasium mats covered with talcum powder where the falls were marked in impressions of the leather-covered orb.

Meet officials said the record toss would be submitted to the Amateur Athletic Union for approval.

Lee, of Davidson, twirled his form 12 feet 2 inches across the bar to distance a crack entry list from North Carolina and Virginia.

The small crowd was brought to its feet in the fast baton-handling in the mile relay in which three teams were entered. The Terrapin quartet of Syle, Sonner, Evans and Hendley, nosing out North Carolina's Williamson, North Carolina anchor man, who grabbed the stick 10 yards behind Hendley, of the Terrapins, but closed with a great burst of speed and was only a whisper behind at the tape. Duke's combination was third. Arnold, Georgia's bespectacled leaper, won the high jump, clearing the bar at 5 feet 10 1/4 inches. Wilkin, of Virginia, was second, and four tied for third place.

CAMPBELL SET FOR LONG WAIT

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Feb. 25.—(AP)—Sir Malcolm Campbell, world's speed champion from Great Britain, has taken his mind off the "disheartening" condition of the beach here on the eve of his drive his Bluebird more than 272 miles an hour.

He apparently is convinced that it will take the full moon of March to take the sand from the beach here on the eve of his drive his Bluebird more than 272 miles an hour he hopes to attain. Full moon means strongly flowing tides.

Whereas in days just passed he anxiously planned to leave today, a day in the hope it had improved since the previous high tide, he now no more than glances at the ocean from his hotel.

Nevertheless, he has turned down suggestions that he spend a few days in Miami—the beach might level out overnight. In that case he'll go for the record on a moon's notice.

So Long, Ekky!

EQUIPOISE, HARD LUCK CHAMPION.

Oglethorpe, 'Mercer' To Battle on Friday

Regular Game To Close Spring Football Drills at Hermance Field.

By Jack Troy.

Oglethorpe and "Mercer" will fight it out all over again and probably along the same lines in Friday's full exhibition game which will end spring training at Hermance field.

Coach John Patrick will sit on his hands and watch two picked teams tear at each other's throat.

Jack McNeely, captain-elect, will lead the Oglethorpe team against "Mercer," captained by Rudy McNamara, Atlanta boy and a fine end.

The kick-off is scheduled at 2:30. Friday, with a nominal admission fee of 25 cents to be charged for visitors and 15 cents for students. A fine crowd is expected.

SHOWS PROMISE.

The Stormy Petrel squad, bolstered in the week spots, has shown a great deal of promise in the spring seasons and Friday's game will give Coach Patrick a fair idea of how much football the boys really have taken on, so to speak.

The Petrels are going in for a variety of passes in a plan of wide-open offensive tactics. The ends, for the first time in 10 years, are targets for kicking, passing, etc. The ends are going in for a variety of passes in a plan of wide-open offensive tactics. The ends, for the first time in 10 years, are targets for kicking, passing, etc.

Proceeds from Friday's game will go into a fund to purchase medals for use next fall. At the end of next football season they are to be awarded to the leading players in such departments as kicking, blocking, ball carrying, kicking, passing, etc.

HEATED RIVALRY.

Friday's game is certain to be well worth the while. Quite a bit of rivalry has been worked up on the campus. Oglethorpe daily reminds "Mercer" that there will be no repetition of that 1-point conquest of last fall. It will be recalled that Robert E. Lee, playing his final game, placed a muddy ball between the uprights for the margin that beat Oglethorpe, 7 to 6.

The two captains chose sides yesterday, with the following lineups resulting:

Oglethorpe	Mercer
Thompson	McNamara
Owens	Neal
Bernard	McNeely
McCullough	McNeely
Adams	McNeely
Darracott	McNeely
Freeman	McNeely
Freeman	McNeely
Tuppin	McNeely
Leila	McNeely
Gibbs	McNeely

Oglethorpe will use the double wing back and "Mercer" the single wing back exclusively in the first half. They will change after the half.

HANDICAP STAR PULLS UP LAME IN FINAL RACE

Big Winner Falls Short by $42,000 of Money Mark.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 25.—(AP)—An old rail-hugging habit which brought three disqualifications possibly prevented Equipoise, hard-luck king of the country who was retired to stud today, from surpassing the Bob's money-winning record.

A big handicap winner in every stage of his career, Ekky pulled up lame to finish seventh in the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap classic last Saturday and relinquished all hope of exceeding Sun Beau's record earnings of $376,744.

Ekky's last race was a consolation of $42,000 short of the mark. Formal announcement that the famous Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney 7-year-old chestnut will be retired to stud was made by Ekky's trainer, T. J. (Jim) Healey, who said the leg had developed a troublesome leg which is badly filled.

PLANNED BEFORE.

Healey said it had been the intention of the Whitney stable to retire Equipoise after the handicap race.

A total of 27,052 of the needed 150,000 dimes to build new homes for the animals and birds given by Asa G. Candler for the city zoo at Grant Park had been collected Monday night.
